EFPA Expert Conference : PSYCHOLOGY FOR HEALTH
Contributions to Policy Making
Brussels, Belgium

More information at <http://congres.efpa.eu/>

Thanks to the broad scope of psychological research and their close collaboration with other professionals in schools, businesses, communities, and health care institutions, psychologists are in a unique position to contribute to the improvement of physical and mental health in Europe.

The aim of this conference is to highlight findings from psychological research and to demonstrate how psychologists can add to the work of other experts in safeguarding and promoting the health of European citizens. A particular emphasis is put on the role that psychology can play in developing healthy life styles, the early discovery of health risks, and various forms of prevention.

This conference will bring together experts from various areas of psychology, offering different but complementary perspectives on promoting health and reducing illness, with the purpose of sharing insights and experiences with policy makers and formulating policy statements as well as recommendations for future policies at the European and national level.

We expect 250 participants, including key actors from European institutions and EU Member States, the health sector, and NGOs, particularly those involved in the EU's Health Programme.

The conference is part of the "Psychology for Europe" initiative (2011) by which the European Federation of Psychologists Associations aims to raise the visibility and impact of psychology as a broad and potent field of science and professional activity that can bring substantial benefit to Europe, socially and economically.

Areas of expertise that will be covered

1. Health promotion via behaviour change: life style, addiction and health
2. Life-long learning and health: what school psychologists can do
3. Enhancing the prevention and early treatment of mental ill-health: depression and suicide
4. Employment, working conditions and stress: from research to practice
5. Managing serious illness: focus on patients and care-givers
6. Health inequality in times of crisis: alleviating the impact of unemployment and poverty
7. Health improvement through physical activity: lessons from sport psychology

8. Psychological contributions to healthy ageing and longevity

SAVE THE CHILDREN's report 2012 published on the State of World Mothers Health

<http://www.savethechildrenweb.org/SOWM2012Interactive/SOWM2012/index.html#/13/zoomed>

Key findings:

- children in an alarming number of countries are not getting adequate nutrition on their first 1000 days;
- child malnutrition is widespread and it is limiting the future success of many countries;
- economic growth is not enough to fight malnutrition;
- cost-effective early interventions and evidence are available and ready to use;
- health workers are key to success;
- in the industrialized world, the United States have the least favourable environment for mothers who want to breastfeed;

Recommendations

- invest in evidence-based, low-cost solutions;
- invest in health workers especially in primary care settings to reach the most vulnerable mothers and children;
- focus on girls' education;
- increase government support for proven solutions;
- improve laws, policies and actions that support families, communities and promote breastfeeding.

MISCELLANEOUS

In May the European Council on Education, Youth, Culture and Sport held its spring meeting.

The minutes are available at http://www.consilium.europa.eu/uedocs/cms_Data/docs/pressdata/en/educ/130177.pdf

“Erasmus for all”:- the new EU programmes for education, training, youth and sport is under discussion now

<http://ec.europa.eu/education/erasmus-for-all/>

The Council agreed a partial general approach on the proposal for a regulation establishing the "Erasmus for All" programme for the period 2014-2020 for which the Commission proposes a significant increase in funding compared with the current budget. The agreement however excludes any provisions with budgetary implications, pending further developments on the negotiations currently under way on the 2014-2020 Multiannual Financial Framework <http://ec.europa.eu/budget/reform/>.

Rather than being organised primarily along sectoral lines (schools, higher education, youth projects, etc.), the new programme will focus on three types of key action: learning mobility, cooperation for innovation and good practices, and support for policy reform. Emphasis will also be placed on activities which have a systemic impact and provide clear EU added value, while efforts will be made to streamline management of the programme and administrative procedures.

Education: The Council adopted conclusions on the employability of graduates from education and training. Their purpose is to establish a European benchmark for identifying those education and training policies which boost the employability of graduates from general education, vocational education and training and higher education and help to ensure successful transitions from education to work. The Commission recalled that the goal in this field is to come back to the European headline target of 82% of young graduates in employment by 2020.

It will make an assessment of the employability benchmark in 2014. The Council adopted also conclusions on fostering the creative and innovative potential of young people. They establish a thematic group with the participation of experts from member states and the Commission with the aim of sharing best practices on how to promote the creativity and innovative capacity of young people by identifying competences and skills acquired through non formal and informal learning relevant to employability.

Sport: The Council adopted conclusions on combating doping in recreational sport with a view to raising awareness and defining a common framework for this matter, as well as identifying best practices. The conclusions call for:

- the development of educational programmes, information campaigns or other preventive measures regarding doping in recreational sport;
- close cooperation between public authorities, the sports movement and the fitness sector on developing joint projects, guidelines and regulations;
- a framework of effective and appropriate national measures for the investigation and sanctioning of the production, trafficking, distribution and possession of doping substances in recreational sport.

The European Charter for Health Equality

http://www.eph.org/IMG/pdf/European_Charter_Health_Equity_December2011_update.pdf

has been opened for signatures until the end of 2012. <http://www.eph.org/a/4368>

Why signing?

- Because the existing systematic differences in health – widespread, unfair and avoidable – impose a growing threat to all people living in Europe and have to be addressed in a concerted manner at all levels and by all relevant stakeholders. Putting right these inequities is a matter of social justice.
- To reaffirm the commitment to the values of well-being, solidarity, social justice, promotion of fundamental human rights and gender equity.
- To call for action from the civil society to all relevant stakeholders and in particular decision makers, relevant governmental and civil society partner organisations, and other regulatory bodies, to protecting and promoting people's health by acting on health inequalities between and within countries in Europe.

- To promote the shared values of solidarity, equity, gender equality, sustainability and participation through mainstreaming health equity in our policies and other actions to ensure due attention is paid to the needs of the poor and other vulnerable groups and to support a societal development that maximises individual and community potential;
- Invest in actions that promote and support health equity, social, gender and environmental determinants of health, and guarantee that such pro-health initiatives are coherent and integrated with effective and measurable evidence-based interventions that are responsive to people's needs, preferences and expectations;
- Foster and build capacity and cross-country learning and cooperation between all relevant stakeholders in development and implementation of policies that have positive impact on social determinants of health.
